

The Washington Post

A Major Strike-Through

The White House eliminated half of the CDC testimony about global warming before it was delivered to Congress on Tuesday.

■ Sections that were cut from the original draft

Among the cuts:

"Scientific evidence supports the view that the earth's climate is changing. A broad array of organizations (federal, state, local, multilateral, faith-based, private and nongovernmental) is working to address climate change. Despite this extensive activity, the public health effects of climate change remain largely unaddressed. CDC considers climate change a serious public health concern."