Good question. San Fran and Seattle would be friendlier forums but CA has no coal plants and WA is phasing out its one plant. Choosing either may create opportunities for the industry to claim EPA is tilting the playing field. Denver would not have that problem plus it is centrally located and pretty easy to get to. So I would have started out by suggesting the other two but end up proposing Denver.

Plus you could play up the RPS and CACJ here, too. The gas industry has way more presence here, too. One last point in its favor - it will make Roy Palmer nervous!

For what it's worth.

Confidential

Hi Jim, EPA may propose NSPS for greenhouse gases for new power plants within next few days (if President decides to go forward with this). There are discussions about potential public hearing venues in the West and some have asked for our confidential input. What do you think makes sense – Denver, Seattle or San Francisco?

He should talk with Bill Ritter. Maybe Jim Carpenter and/or Kelly Nordini.
But happy to talk with him.

Heads up. Confdl. Bob is Gov Cuomo's #1 on energy/envt. Any other suggestions? Hope you are well.

Bob, My sincere apologies for the delay. May I introduce you to Jim Martin? He was Gov Ritter's strategic advisor on this matter (headed CDPHE and then DNR) and is now head of EPA Region 8. I can do so discreetly. He is superb and the very best thinker on these matters. We need all the help you can muster in supporting EPA's proposed GHG emission standards for new plants. Commissioner Martens' statement on Tues was wonderful, NY AG's office co-party in matter with EDF et al. Best wishes, Vickie

Subject: Question

Hi: who is the best person(s) to discuss your and CO's plan to phase out coal plants with particular focus on addressing economic impacts on local tax base and employment in affected areas?

Also do you know whether Sierra Club has devised any transition plans/proposals in connection with its campaign?

Met a friend of yours-Matt Fuchs now at IBM last week

Hope all is well. Best,

Bob
