The Honorable Matt H. Mead
Governor
200 W 24th St
Cheyenne, WY 82001-3642

Dear Governor Mead,

Congratulations on the dedication of the Wyoming Integrated Test Center. This facility is certainly the future of energy technology.

Today's dedication demonstrates Wyoming's leadership—not just in the United States but internationally—in supporting innovative carbon capture and utilization technologies. These technologies will allow researchers to create new markets and bring new economic prosperity by transforming carbon dioxide into useful products.

The ITC is an important resource for Wyoming's economy. It provides a valuable forum for innovators to experiment and test technologies that will turn carbon dioxide into marketable products. By utilizing flue gas from the Dry Fork Station, researchers are able to test new technologies in realistic conditions.

Thank you to Jason Begger and the Wyoming Infrastructure Authority for their leadership and steadfast vision to bring this project to completion. The ITC demonstrates how Wyoming has distinguished itself as an energy and technology leader.

Bobbi joins me in sending our congratulations and best wishes.

With warm regards,
