RE: 2018 America's Infrastructure Bill
Sent electronically

Dear Chairman Barrasso and Ranking Member Carper:

In Florida, our ecology is our economy. Red tide is now plaguing all three of our coasts, while blue-green algae blooms continue to ravage South Florida's coastal estuaries. Restoration projects in America's Everglades can help address the underlying causes of South Florida's devastating harmful algal blooms. Businesses and our quality of life are suffering, and we cannot afford any more delays.

More than 3,400 Audubon Florida members join me today in support of the America's Water Infrastructure Act of 2018 (S. 3021) which includes authorization of the Everglades Agricultural Area (EAA) Storage Reservoir project (petition signatures attached). The House's vote nearly three weeks ago presents a clear path for Senate action on a compromise bill that includes authorization for this critical Everglades restoration project. We are grateful for your dedicated bipartisan leadership on this issue, and urge the Senate to take up S. 3021 for final vote without further delay.

What is happening off the coasts of Florida and along our estuaries is far from normal. Blue-green algae blooms and red tide are exacerbated by nutrient-laden waters being discharged from Lake Okeechobee. The extreme weather we experienced this year strains Florida's water management systems and creates even more favorable conditions for algal blooms to choke our communities. South Florida has experienced harmful algal blooms each of the past three years, each year worse than the year before. The EAA Reservoir will store and clean water from Lake Okeechobee and then reroute it south. Not only will this diminish the harmful discharges to the estuaries that are fueling these coastal blooms, it will deliver clean water to Everglades National Park and Florida Bay where it is desperately needed.

The need for action on water policy has never been clearer. Help us get S. 3201 to the Senate floor. Pass this vital legislation, and help deliver hope to Florida's wildlife, its waterways, and the millions of families whose livelihoods depend on clean water and healthy coasts.

Sincerely,

Julie Wraithmell
Executive Director
Audubon Florida
